Explorers

A. Ben

When I was a boy, my parents worked in Africa for two years. We visited lots of exciting places there and I have loved travelling and exploring since then. I usually choose to travel alone because it is easier to meet people that way. I often stay with the new friends I make on my journeys, and finding out about new cultures is my favourite part of exploring.

B. Kate

My favourite places are in the cold parts of the world. There are some areas, covered in snow and ice, where almost no one has ever been before. I usually go on foot because there are no roads. I plan my trips very carefully - I like to be well prepared and I take lots of special equipment with me. I sometimes go for days and weeks without seeing other people - I like the opportunity that gives me to think about my life and to make plans.

C. Steve

I do most of my exploring by boat. It can take me weeks to get somewhere I could drive to in a day, but it is all about the journey. I always take someone else because my boat needs two people and I don't think I would like to go alone. There usually aren't many people at all in the places that I explore, so I don't often meet new people. My boat is quite small so I can get to places that other, bigger boats can't get to. That makes travelling even more interesting.

Three teachers tell us why they love their jobs

A Betty

My mum and dad were teachers so it's not surprising that I became one. I saw how happy they were in their jobs and I always thought teaching was a possibility for me. But I didn't think it would be such hard work. During term time there is absolutely no time for any personal evening activities in the week. Luckily, we get good holidays and I love travelling when I get the chance.

B Amalia

I did a teacher training course in college and now I work in a school with children aged four to eleven. I love seeing them growing up in front of my eyes! I teach kids in their first year at school. At the beginning of the year they are usually shy and quiet, but I do everything I can to make them feel relaxed and happy. If they aren't happy and relaxed, they aren't going to learn. I'm glad tests aren't important for my pupils.

C Brandon

I teach history to children over the age of sixteen. Most of them work very hard because they want to get good marks and get into the university of their choice. I love discussing things with them and helping them understand the links between what has already happened and things that are happening now. I never thought I would be a teacher - I only turned to it when I was looking for a job after university - and I love it!

My parents play in a band so there is always music in our house. I started playing the piano when I was six after I heard a very young girl play at a concert. She was just five years old but she was as good as an adult professional pianist. My first concert was at the age of nine. I'll never forget how scared I was but once I was at the piano I relaxed and just thought about the music.

B Ann

My parents are both doctors but they really enjoy listening to music. My mother played the piano when she was young so she asked me if I wanted to learn to play something. I chose the violin but it isn't easy. Sometimes I get angry when I can't play the right way. I don't know if I'll keep playing it: I also play tennis three times a week and it's a bit tiring doing everything so I guess I'll have to choose.

C Tim

I've always loved music since I was a little child: my father told me I started dancing as soon as I heard classical music on the radio. That's why when I was four I started piano lessons. However, my teacher wasn't very friendly. I sometimes got bored with the exercises he gave me, so a year later I asked my parents if I could have singing lessons instead. I really enjoy singing: I often sing with my brother, who plays the guitar. It's so exciting!

The people below all want to find some caves that they could visit. There are descriptions of six caves. Decide which caves would be the most suitable for the following people and choose the correct letter (A-F). There is one description you do not need to use.

CAVES TO VISIT

A Hatton Hole

The area here isn't attractive, but the temperature inside is comfortable-there's even a stream for swimming! These caves have been made larger for the music shows held here. Cave paintings can be seen further underground, and there are books available about the caves' history.

B Mara Hollow

You'll need to know all about going into caves to visit this place, as there's no guide. You can walk comfortably for hundreds of metres, but some sections are quite narrow. There's a great display of the caves' history, with paintings and photos showing the first people to enter the caves during the 20th century.

C Maribu Caves

These caves are perfect for experienced people wishing to visit caves by themselves, as they're quite safe. And there's plenty to see as the colourful rocks inside look like strange objects - animals, birds or even vegetables! There's also a big natural pool you can dive into, so take your costumes!

D Trussack Cavern

These huge old caves go underground for miles, and when the temperature drops outside, it's actually warmer inside! The guides know everything about the caves, from how they were used thousands of years ago, to their recent discovery. The natural swimming pool and scenery outside are beautiful-perfect for photos.

E Dragon's Nook

These caves are surrounded by beautiful trees and waterfalls. They were made larger recently to let visitors enter easily, and they're now big enough to hold exhibitions and concerts – from pop to classical! Visitors can walk around without a guide. Take your camera for the original wall paintings.

F Cabran's Den

These large, deep caves with waterfalls are perfect for photos of the strange rock shapes. There are pictures on the rock walls done by people living here centuries ago, who'd find the caves nowadays haven't changed at all – including the low temperatures! Visitors are accompanied by guides.

Marek and his family often visit caves, so he would prefer not to have a guide. They'd like to find caves with interesting rock shapes, and where they could have a swim.

C

Jane and her family want a tour of caves that look just as they did when they were discovered, with original cave paintings. They like caves with water flowing through them.

F

Mario and his family will be visiting caves during the winter, and don't want anywhere cold inside, or very small. They'd like to have someone show them the caves and explain their history.

D

Twins Henry and Karina are keen on photography and want to take good pictures inside and outside the caves they visit. Their parents would like to attend a music performance inside the caves.

E

Justine and her family are experienced at visiting caves, and want to find some that go a long way underground. They'd also like to see an exhibition about how the caves were discovered.

The PizzaFest

It's September 2008 and I am at the world pizza festival in Naples, Italy. I've always loved Italian food. When I was a child, I [use, used, using] to make pizza and other Italian dishes for my family, and now I work as a chef in an Italian restaurant In New York. In my opinion, nobody cooks as [good, well, better] as the Italians, and many people think that the people in Naples make pizzas better [than, as, for] anyone else in the world. So what happens at the festival? There is music and dancing and of course lots of pizza eating. You can [make, have, take] your own favourite pizza created for you, or if you [will wanted, want, wanted] to, you can go to a workshop and learn how to make it yourself. Yesterday, I [asked, said, told] a restaurant owner to explain the history of pizza. He [said, spoke, told] me that the people of Naples made the first pizza. He [spoke, told, said] that although flat bread is thousands of years old, people didn't use [to, for, with] put ingredients on bread until the 19th century. Eventually, somebody made a topping that consisted [of, for, from] tomatoes, mozzarella cheese and basil, ingredients with the colours of the Italian flag, and called it 'Margherita', after the Queen of Italy.

Cloud forests

Cloud forests [are found, are finding, find] in tropical mountains. Most of them are in Asia, but they are also in Latin America and Africa. Cloud forests [are taking, take, have taken] water from the clouds and the fog and this produces clean water supplies for people in many areas. The cloud forests of La Tigra National Park in Honduras [provide, providing, are provided] over 40% of the water for around 850,000 people. The problem is that scientists think that cloud forests will one day [disappear, to disappear, will disappear] Part of the reason for this is that people are [making, getting, having] rid of large sections of the forests for farming and road-building. However, scientists think that climate change [would, could, should] be the biggest danger. Warmer temperatures might [make, made, making] the clouds lift and the forests will dry out. Conservation groups have decided [help, helping, to help] protect the rainforests, but all of us [need, might, must] think about global warming and its effects. Anyone interested [for, of, in] the future of the cloud forests can contact their local environment group.

Healthy eating

People have been interested in good food [since, for, just] hundreds of years, but eating healthy food in the modern world is becoming difficult. This is because many of our foods contain artificial flavours and colours which are bad for us. So what can we do? First, look in your cupboards and throw [away, up, across] anything that isn't healthy! Then, try to choose the food you buy more carefully. It's [healthier, more healthier, healthily] to eat organic fruit and vegetables. However, these can be more expensive [as, to, than] other products and not everybody can afford them. If you can't buy organic products, the [good, better, best] thing you can do is to read food labels and check what ingredients are in the food. It's [uncomfortable, incorrect, impossible] to avoid artificial products all the time, but there are other things you can do. You [would, should, ought] drink plenty of water and eat lots of fruit and vegetables. Cut [down, out, up] on fried and rich foods that contain lots of fats, sugar and white flour. [Avoid, Avoiding, To avoid] buying ready-made food and fast food and you should feel great and look [pleasant, amazing, amusing] too!
